

Join the fight for greater access to vaccines. Join ADPC.

Every year, around 42,000 Americans die of vaccine-preventable diseases.

As a member of the American Disease Prevention Coalition (ADPC), you can help us save more of those lives. We're dedicated to improving health by enabling pharmacists across all states to deliver a wider range of vaccines. So far, we've made great strides toward this goal, but need your help to keep the momentum going.

Making essential vaccines more available.

ADPC works to improve state laws to allow qualified pharmacists to deliver vaccines on the following lists: the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Recommended Immunization Schedule, the CDC's Health Information for International Travel, and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's Vaccines Licensed for Use in the United States. By improving access to essential vaccines, we will help prevent disease and outbreaks all across the country.

How our leadership works.

The ADPC Steering Committee determines our purpose and guiding principles by consensus, setting our specific agenda, goals, and objectives. The founding members of the Steering Committee include the National Association of Chain Drug Stores, Pfizer, and Walgreens. All committee members can advise and provide input, and no single member has a veto. The committee meets via conference call as needed to discuss agendas, goals, outreach, and next steps.

By improving access to essential vaccines, we will help prevent disease and outbreaks all across the country.

Spreading the word.

We also develop messaging and materials to establish advocacy engagement at the state level. Through these efforts, we help key stakeholders understand the value pharmacists bring to disease prevention, and educate the public on the importance of improved legislation.

Become a part of ADPC.

ADPC invites other organizations that share our mission and vision to take part in advocacy and communications efforts. We offer three types of membership, each with an important role in advancing our mission: Steering Committee Member, Participating Member, and Supporting Member.
